This is a utility that is designed to allow you to control and automatically schedule media for Windows XP and Windows 7. It has become standard on all new machines to have the keyboard media controls built into the keyboard itself. What this program does is allows you to assign media keys, such as next, previous, play and stop, to functions such as CD ripping and DVD ripping. Additionally, it is possible to schedule media to be executed on a regular basis, such as every two weeks or every month. You have the ability to assign media keys to multiple profiles. This means that you can have one profile to control media playback while you are at work and a second profile to control the same media, but on a different subject, when you are at home. MULTI-PLATFORM UPDATED ALL THE TIME!... Windows users can now capture images from multiple monitors without the need for any third-party apps. CustomPrintScreen is a Windows application that allows you to select the monitor that should be captured and crop its screen before saving it. Conclusion CustomPrintScreen is a program that enables you to take screenshots from multiple monitors on your PC. It's also possible to select specific parts of a monitor to capture and even crop the screen, though the preview window isn't particularly nice. In addition, it will not work if only one monitor is connected to your system. Pros: Does not require a third-party app or download Enables you to select which part of a monitor should be captured Very easy to use Cons: Cropping tool is basic Only captures a single monitor You can't fine-tune the dimensions of the selection box after it has been created Senator Ben Sasse on Thursday challenged the four Democratic presidential candidates to a debate on his Nebraska home turf, where he says they'll need to admit their "failed utopian experiment" to address climate change. "I'm willing to debate them on stage in my house, my city, my state," the Nebraska senator told Fox News' "America's Newsroom." DEMS SET TO DEBATE IN TWO-HOUR PRIMETIME FACE-OFF IN NORTH CAROLINA "But I'm not going to debate them here in Washington, D.C." Sasse said he's heard from numerous constituents "that they just want to understand how much longer we're going to live in the dystopia that's created by this failed utopian experiment." "These are the questions that I'd like to see debated. I'd like to see a debate where the answer to the question, 'What would you do about climate change?' isn't just 'I'd fight it,'" he said. But, he added, "I don't think that will happen on CNN." The first 2020 Democrat debate is scheduled for June 26 in Miami, D.C., and two more debates are scheduled to take place in early July. Sasse also said he's heard from constituents "that they just want to understand how much longer we're going to live
