* Install Xiret from the PortableApps website. * Open the Xiret program and click "Test". The application performs a series of tests. Each test lasts only a few seconds. * Once the tests have been completed, the Windows Experience Index score is displayed. If you use a search engine, you probably see lots of mentions of HomeSite on Google, Microsoft and other search engines. Is this the program that performs those Google searches for you and has “enriched” the results page with further information? Well, no. HomeSite is one of many programs that use Bing search data to generate lists of search results. That’s all it does. It does not perform search queries for you. HomeSite is a portable program, so you can simply download it and run it. All the information it generates is available to you on the Start menu. HomeSite has a simple, easy to use interface and will help you find contacts, dates and places. It’s perfect for when you’re looking for a simple tool to help you find information. Description: * Download HomeSite from the PortableApps website. * Run HomeSite. * Click “Get results”. * The program searches Google for the specified search term and lists the results. * Click a result to view the website. * Navigate the results, or click “Search another result”. You need to know a bit of information to use ACID. It’s not an easy program to run and install. This is good news. It means it’s unlikely to overwrite your hard drive. Once you have set up ACID, you can have it generate passwords for you in a matter of seconds. The program will also generate you a strong set of default passwords. This is the sort of program you would need if you were to register for a new website. The main features of ACID are: * Generate strong passwords for you. * Generate a strong set of default passwords. * Generate temporary passwords. * Reuse passwords. * Export passwords to a file or share them with other people. * Look up passwords. * Generate passwords for online services. * Generate passwords for Windows users. * Generate passwords for Outlook users. * Generate passwords for other users and groups. * Generate passwords for multiple users. * Generate passwords for several different user

Use Xiret to identify the speed of your computer. It is a simple utility to calculate the Windows Experience Index based on system performance measurements. Xiret is lightweight and can be put to use from USB drives or other portable media. The Windows Experience Index (WEX) scores the processor, memory, graphics card and hard disk. The program displays a single score for each benchmark, and a TXT file containing a summary of the scores. This can be easily shared with others.
