Scott's Gmail Alert connects to your Gmail account and checks your Inbox for new messages. The app displays all new mail messages in a nice box for a few seconds and allows you to control how long it will display them. Scott's Gmail Alert is useful for you when you receive new messages on Gmail. The app checks your inbox for new mail and displays a message, also known as an alert, in a nice box, usually displayed on the screen for a few seconds. The time duration is defined from the app's settings menu. Additionally, you can also customize the app's alerts by defining them in the app's settings. You can color code each of the new alerts so you know instantly which email account the alert is from. Also, you can specify to have the alerts appear on top of all other windows or to postpone them when you're in full screen mode. Furthermore, the app can search your Google Search Window, load Google Calendar, load weather data, load RSS feeds, connect to Google Talk and display message count on the desktop. All in all, Scott's Gmail Alert is a nice application that you can use on any computer, although you need to be a little bit more familiar with computer applications. The overall simplicity of this program should make it easy for inexperienced users to set up and learn how to use it in no time. Description: Check out the great work of this self proclaimed "Guru" of the Mac and this is a few of his popular apps. For the beginner, this is a good one to start with. Description: This is a great one for you if you're looking for some utilities to check your Mac in a quick manner. Everything you want to check can be displayed in a nice way. For example, you can display all your installed apps, what are all your currently running apps, what are all your most commonly run apps, what are all the files that are currently open or what is the number of Windows that are currently open. In addition, you can also display all of the recent files that you've edited on your Mac in a nice manner. What's really nice is that you can even copy all of this info and paste it into a text editor. Also, the program is very intuitive and has a clean user interface. It doesn't have a bunch of menus, buttons and the like, it is all displayed in a nice, clean manner. Finally, this program has a great price, costing only $29.99 and is available on the Mac App Store. Description: Get the ultimate in image editing with this one. If
