MemZilla

It may be taken for granted that everything running on your computer uses some amount of system resources, but it's easy to get more memory free than necessary. It's not like you can open up the task manager and figure out the source of the problem. Not to mention, sometimes the problem can be caused by malware or by an innocent program with a bad memory manager. MemZilla is a simple application which can be used to make the system use the most memory as efficiently as possible. All the application has to offer can be found in a compact main window. It includes all controls you need to free up memory, as well as a real time updating graph of usage. Several info fields are in plain sight and display total, free, and used RAM, as well as similar values for virtual memory. Optimization is done at the press of a button. However, the application attempts to clear up as much memory as it can, but it can't be used to target specific programs or services. What you can do is configure a recovery power slider with up to nine different steps. The larger the value the longer it can take for the operation to finish, but there are more chances of success. Memory cleared at the press of a button Don't expect to have the entire available memory freed. Once the clean operation is put in motion, you can view as the graph updates, as well as other info fields. Additional options can be used to make the application minimize to the tray area and bring it up with little effort every time you need to free up some memory. Sadly, it doesn't come with a default option to make it run with windows, but you can manually place a shortcut of the executable in the system startup folder to bypass this issue. A log of events can be generated and saved to file. In conclusion Taking everything into consideration, we can say that MemZilla is a handy application which is sure to get you out of sticky situations. It's easy enough to use by individuals of all levels of experience, and is sure to free up enough space so the system doesn't suddenly crash.Q: How to I set static not take long to run and provide amazing results. A small game for the Lofi genre. You take the role of a brave explorer, charged with an important mission: to rescue the entire galaxy from the evil Dr. Pinnacle. Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to travel through different worlds, and destroy all the nasty golems of evil! The gameplay is simplistic in structure. Your ship is not exactly fast. You don't have anything to attack with, except the power of your shield. Your main goal is to destroy as many golems as possible, until you find a way out. There are three different levels to traverse. Each world is full of nasty golems. They follow you and try to kill you. The best way to beat them is to have plenty of shield, and a great amount of life. You also have to find a way to stun them. The only powerups you can get are: 1) Extra life (which increases your current life by 1). 2) Extra shield (that keeps you protected for a bit more). 3) Stun (which makes them freeze for a little while, and gives you time to fire some missiles).
